Mistakes In Use of Words.

If use can make authority in the employment of words it is high time that ertain etymologically misused phrases of our English tongue should be adopted into the family of orthodoxy. The word "necessity" is habitually used as the equivalent of "necessary," instead of being its direct opposite. A man says: "I do not care for the luxuries of life if I have the necessities," when probably he has the "necessities" in calamitous abundance. Quite as common a blunder is the confusion between the words "expect" and "susect." A man says: "There is a knock at the door. I 'expect' that is the tax collector." He should say, "I have been expecting the tax collector and suspect that is he."-Boston Transcript.

England In the Sixteenth Century. In the "Northumberland Household Book," published in 1512, it was stated that a thousand pounds was the sum annually expended for the food of members of the noble family concerned and that of their retainers. The amount maintained 166 persons, and wheat then cost 5s. 8d. per quarter. The household rose at 6 in the moruing. No Cheap Resorts Near Paris.

It is a remarkable thing, but in the near neighborhood of Paris there are his name in a big book, together with but very few places where one can go. and spend a cheap holiday, and take one's family. For one thing, milk is when a crowd of excursionists visited always difficult to get in country the grounds and buildings, a stout girl places; it is all sent to the nearest town or the ground is cultivated. Pasture land is rare in France, and milk called out to an elderly lady comfort- is dear. The same with the fruit and ably seated in a big chair, "Mon, vere vegetables-they all go away to the towns. Apropos of this, there is a butcher in Barbizon who enjoys a unique position. He is the only one within five or six miles, and if you grumble at him, he says, "The tramway leaves in two hours; see if you can get better in the next town-or try the forest, if my meat doesn't please you!"

Russell Sage's Great Luck.

When Norcross blew himself up in Russell Sage's office, Jay Gould jumped into a carriage with a gentleman, who told this to the New York Press, and rushed to Mr. Sage's residence to congratulate him on his lucky escape from death. Uncle Rusas Mr. Gould shook his hand and spoke of his good fortune, Mr. Sage coolly remarked: "Yes, I was pretty lucky; I had on these old clothes inwere a sight to be imagined.

The Day of Petty Tyranny.

Early methodist preachers had reason to deplore the power of the allmighty landlord. Charles Wesley himself suffered. For he was summoned and fined £10 ($50) and heavy costs—not for firing ricks or uprooting hedges, but for walking across a field to address an audience. Here is the record: "Goter versus Wesley; damages, £10; costs taxed, £9 16s 8d. July 29th, 1739. Received of Mr. Wesley, 19 pounds, 16 shillings and eight pence for damages and costs in their it over, then turned to the waiter and cause.-William Gaston, attorney for the plaintiff."

"Much Ado About Nothing."

Arthur Smith, colored, was arrested Wednesday by Chief of Police Elgin upon a charge of breach of the peace, he having used abusive and profane language upon the street. Judge Harmon Stitt was the attorney for Smith and asked for a jury to try his client. Judge January then continued the case until yesterday morning to give Chief Elgin time to summan a jury. The following jurors were selected to try the case: Forrest Thomas. Tom Morris, W. P. Hume, Wm. McKimey, Pat Shea, Geo. Honey.

After the evidence was heard and Judge January had instructed the jury, arguments were made by Judge Stitt arguments were made by Judge Stitt for the defendant and City Attorney McMillan for the city. Judge January limited the speakers to five minutes, yet it was plenty of time for both to warm up and make telling speeches. While Judge Stitt's plea for his boy client was very strong and effective to an outsider, it did not work on the hard-hearted jurymen, who brought in a verdict finding Smith guilty and fixing a fine of $5 and costs. The trial reminded one of "Much Ado About Nothing."

Hargis Wants Rehearing.

A petition for a rehearing in the Beach Hargis case has been filed with the Court of Appeals, so it was stated Tuesday by parties from Jackson. The ground for the petition, which was filed several days ago, according to a re-port is the dissenting opinion of two of the judges of the higher court who did not concur in refusing the prisoner

Young Hargis was given a life sentence for the murder of his father, Judge James Hargis, upon his final trial at Irvine several months ago. The senence was affirmed by the Court of Appeals, and the motion for a new trial rejected. Since then the prisoner has been in jail at Irvine, and this petition for a rehearing is a final effort to save the patricide from the penitenrole of young Hargis on condition that he leave the State of Kentucky and never return. His mother, Mrs. Louellen Hargis, has disposed of most of her property, and is said to be willing to go with her boy into exile, if she can secure his release under the parcle

More Power to 'Em.

The extended power given umpires by the adoption of a rule by the rules committee of the National League at Pittsburg Tuesday night is an inspiration of President T. J. Lynch. This is the rule empowering the umpires to clear the bench of substitutes of any team who express their disapproval of the umpire's decisions and indulge in rowdyism in general. "There has been much rowdyism from the bench," Secretary Heydler said last night, "and these are the men President Lynch is after. Umpires Klem and Johnstone were two of the president's advisers in this matter, they having been sufferers from the bench during the last playing season. Up to last night there was no role to cover this, but now rowdy playthe umpire's decisions and indulge in

The Leather Bottle Inn.

On the Dover road at Northfleet, just where the old road, down which David Copperfield trudged on his weary pilgrimage to Dover, breaks away on its temporary parting from what is now the main road, is an old inn named the Leather Bottle. Over the door hangs a veritable leather bottle. The uninitiated Dickensian is momentarily deceived into the belief that here is the Leather Bottle of Pickwick fame, and is disgusted when he discovers that this is still four miles farther on. Nevertheless, this is one of the few "real Dickens inns" I will, as agent, offer for sale to the still remaining. Dickens, when on his long country tramps, often turned in the Deposit Bank, at North Middl there for refreshment, and the chair town, Ky., on he usually occupied is still to be seen -priceless in the eyes of the host. - Saturday Afternoon, Jan. 29, London Chronicle.

"Have you joined the boycott?" asked the waiter.

"No," said Mrs. Green, dubiously, "but meat is too high. You don't get your money's worth. People really can't afford to eat it. There are other things just as good and cheaper."

There appear to be many persons who agree with Mrs. Green. In response to a lighter demand, the price of meat in the Brooklyn wholesale district has declined 20 per cent., and pork loins slumped sympathetically. Pat Crowe Wants to Find Kellner rious bandits and kidnapers of America who in 1900 secured a ransom of $25,-000, paid in gold by Edward Cudahy, the Omaha packer, for the return of his son, Edward Cudahy, who had been kidnaped, has been attracted by the kidnaping of Alma Katherine Kellner, and is anxious to work on the case, according to a special telegram from Chicago, where Crowe resides with his family, at 1054 Lawrence Avenue.

Frank Fehr, couisn of Alma, says that he is not wanted in Louisville by the Kellner family, and that if he comes and endeavors to solve the deep mystery involving the girl's disappearance it will not be at the invitation of the relatives. Mr. Fehr says that everything possible is being done to ascertain the child's whereabouts and her restoration but that the case remains without new developments.

Crowe was a fugitive from justice for six years following the kidnaping of Edward Cudahy. He was tried three times for the alleged abduction, but escaped conviction. He was engaged to work on the kidnaping case of Billy Whitla last year at Sharon, Pa., but the child was recovered a few hours wheels of legislation, 'said one, "but before he was to act as the "go-be-

Free from Sin.

Among the many excuses for drinking one of the most convincing is that noted by Lord John Russell in the journal kept of his youthful travels in Spain. When visiting Plasencia he pressed his astonishment that a scion Europe for their drinking prowess tations. Lord John retorted that he had no desire to reach the six bottle standard set by some of his peers. His boon companion proceeded to rebuke him for his departure from sane tradition and concluded by remarking that "even on religious grounds you are wrong. For he who drinks well sleeps well. He who sleeps well sins not. And he who sins not shall be

What Roads Owe to Salt.

Roads, we are told, owe a great deal to salt. According to one theory, the oldest trade routes came into exist ence as a result of the traffic in salt. GEO. DOYLE, Bookkeeper. One of the oldest roads in Italy is the "Via Salaria," along which the people of the Sabine country obtained their salt from the salt pans of Ostia. Salt was the main merchandise carried in the trans-Libyan caravans of the days of Herodotus, and salt is one of the chief elements in the trade along the Sahara caravan routes to-day. Salt and salt fish, it is interesting to remember, entered largely into the comter, by the way, was considered a delicacy in those pre-Christian days.
